

Product Descriptions and Pricing Brief

Donuts, base kolaches, tier two kolaches and stuffed rolls

Part bakery, part product lab.

Small batch donuts, kolaches, stuffed rolls and coffee. Ridgway, Colorado.

A working menu and production language guide for keeping the launch simple, repeatable and ready to grow. The base forms stay consistent. The glazes, fillings, smoked meats and rotating tests create the range.

Brand and menu direction

madebutter. should feel easy to understand at first glance. The product forms stay controlled. The flavors create the range. A customer can see the shape, understand the family and trust that the product will look the same online, in packaging and in the case.

The menu is built around three launch platforms: donuts, croissant kolaches and stuffed rolls. Each platform has base items, tier two items and rotating tests. That gives the brand room to experiment without making the menu feel messy.

Platform	Base idea	How it grows
Donuts	Repeatable dough families with clean glazes and fillings	Flavor drops, rotating glazes, seasonal toppings and visual specials
Kolaches	Three base croissant kolaches	Tier two cheeses, peppers, proteins, vegan builds and limited fillings
Stuffed rolls	Soft roll with consistent shape	Smoked meat batches, wood flavor tests, breakfast builds and lunch rotations

Public about line

Part bakery, part product lab. We make small batch donuts, croissant kolaches and stuffed rolls in Ridgway, Colorado. The menu stays simple, the products stay consistent and the flavors keep moving. Order ahead or come in. We are always testing new glazes, smoked fillings and ideas worth coming back for.

Pricing draft

Customer prices are clean rounded totals with tax included. Internal sheets should still track tax reserve, net revenue, food cost, labor and packaging.

Product tier	Customer price	Planning note
Basic raised milk donut	$2.00	Accessible entry point
Specialty ring, mochi ring, old fashioned	$2.50	Most everyday visual donuts
Cream filled, milk bar, cruller, cake donut	$3.00	More labor, filling or finishing
Market fritter	$3.50	Bigger, irregular and seasonal
Base all beef kolache	$5.50	Premium grab and go
Tier two kolache	$6.00 to $7.00	Cheese, pepper, vegan or specialty filling
Breakfast stuffed roll	$9.00	Flat breakfast price
Lunch stuffed roll	$10.00	Smoked meat platform
Rotating stuffed roll	$11.00	Higher labor, limited test item

Pricing principles

- Keep one everyday donut at $2.00 so the brand feels accessible.
- Let most visual specialty donuts naturally sit from $2.50 to $3.00.
- Base kolaches should feel premium because they use croissant pastry and all beef sausage.
- Tier two kolaches can carry more price when the filling, cheese or prep is more expensive.
- Stuffed rolls should not be underpriced because they require smoked meats, filling prep, refrigeration, packaging and more service control.

Donuts

Two stations make the donut system easier to train: dough and fry, then glaze and finish.

Donuts are the main visual bakery system. Each family has one clear shape language, then flavors change through glaze, filling, speckles, marbling or a restrained accent. The goal is a case that feels fresh but never random.

Station	What it handles	Timing
Dough and fry station	Mixing, portioning, proofing, frying and base quality checks	Dough is prepped ahead. Morning proofing and frying are fired off fresh.
Glaze and finish station	Glazes, fillings, dips, drizzles, sleeves, photos and case setup	Glazes and fillings are prepped ahead when possible. Finishing happens fresh for the service window.

Kolaches

The first three kolaches are the base set. Tier two kolaches can add different cheeses, peppers, proteins and fillings while keeping the same croissant pastry format.

Croissant kolaches are built for morning grab and go. They should look consistent from day to day. The base items establish the platform. The next layer can introduce pepper jack, cheddar blends, smoked fillings, mushroom builds, seasonal vegetables or limited meat tests.

Process step	Working standard
Prep	Base fillings are portioned, wrapped or staged ahead so the morning bake stays controlled.
Hold	Kolaches are refrigerated and ready for the next day. Future testing can include par-baked filled kolaches for faster morning service.
Bake	Bake fresh in the morning. Keep exterior glossy, pastry flaky and sizing consistent.
Growth	Use the same shape for tier two flavors so customers understand the product family immediately.

Stuffed rolls

The stuffed roll is the savory product lab. The roll stays consistent. The filling becomes the experiment.

Stuffed rolls are where the smoked meat program can grow. A batch of brisket, beef, chicken or vegetables can become multiple controlled fillings by changing the wood, sauce, cheese, pepper, onion, herb or finishing direction.

Process step	Working standard
Smoke and build flavor	Smoke meats in batches with different wood profiles. Toss with the selected sauce, cheese, peppers, onions or vegetables.
Mince and portion	Chop or mince the filling so it eats cleanly inside the roll. Portion into consistent filling logs or molds.
Chill or freeze	Refrigerate the next production batch. Freeze extra filling logs when needed so the texture stays firm and easy to insert.
Temper before use	Move frozen filling to refrigeration ahead of production so it softens slightly while staying structured.
Insert and bake	Place the firm filling into dough, seal cleanly and bake fresh. The filling should stay centered, hot and controlled.

Words to avoid or limit

- Avoid overexplaining the donuts. Let the flavor and shape do the work.
- Describe mochi dough as airy, mochi style, soft bounce or light bounce. Avoid heavy or dense language.
- Avoid making every item sound precious. Keep it clean and confident.
- Use longer descriptions only for smoked meats, vegan builds or stuffed rolls that need more context.

Packaging, photo and menu standards

Mostly white, black and subtle yellow with a restrained matcha accent. Keep the system clean and repeatable.

Area	Standard
Logo	Use the updated nibble butter icon with the madebutter. wordmark. Keep the logo centered with room around it.
Box copy	Small paragraph text should sit under the black madebutter wordmark, starting at the lowercase m, not under the butter icon.
Box shape	Keep the box shorter and travel ready with an elegant thin cardboard handle. Front and sides should feel square and clean.
Sleeves	Use thin white bakery paper. Only the top has ridges. Keep the logo small, centered and clean.
Product sizing	All ring donuts match. Both kolaches match. Maple bars and fritters can be unique but should not overpower the box.
Photo style	White studio background, subtle shadow, consistent product scale and approved angles for web, menu and training.
Menu image files	Lowercase only, category first, dashes only, no spaces, no numbers and no file extensions.

Launch product control

Every approved product should eventually have a whole product photo, an opened or bite view when useful, a packaged view and a final menu image. The same approved photo language should be used for the website, TV ads, staff training and POS reference images.
